DETAILED ACTION

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

2. Claim 1 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Takashima.

Takashima discloses the field of the invention, including a stop switch, insertable lock plate, a control section that receives the transmitted ID code from the transponder, and an antenna 86 for receiving same.

Re “integrally formed”, such fails to define any specific structure and/or arrangement so as to define over Takashima, as merely interconnecting the parts forms an integral structure.

Re “being provided at the switch case”, clearly the antenna of Takashima is provided in the switch case, and “circuit” fails to define over any wires interconnecting the antenna with the remainder of the control section, and provision of such wires is inherent.

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claims 2 and 3 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Takashima in view of Carroll et al.

Takashima fails to disclose a substrate in the switch housing as claimed.

Carroll et al. teaches the attachment of the antenna and all circuitry to a common circuit board/substrate.

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to mount all the authentication components of Takashima upon a common substrate as taught by Carroll et al.

Such a combination would have been desirable at the time of the invention so as to provide for improved reliability of the device.
